NEW DIFFICULTY.

Venezuela May Have to Face England for the Unprovoked Murder of a British Vessel Officer.

(Special Correspondence.)

BARBOS, Oct. 30.—The dispute between Great Britain and Venezuela will now assume quite a new phase.

The European power may have to declare war with the South American republic, but not for the present at least upon the boundary question. If war is declared—and it will be undoubtedly imminent—it will be upon a basis that the conditions of the Monroe doctrine will not apply and Venezuela will have to face the enemy without the support of the United States. It is announced that a commander named Filibet, on board the Venezuelan guard Costa, had shot down Mr. Thos. Garcia, owner of the British schooner Myosotis, on board that vessel while on a voyage from Port-of-Spain, Trinidad, B. W. I., in a most unprovoked manner.

The main facts of the occurrence have been reported to the administrator at Trinidad, and a report on the same is now on its way to London for the edification of the secretary of state for the colonies and cabinet.

It is generally believed that the murder of Mr. Garcia is a great misfortune to Venezuela, considering the present relations between the two countries, as it will give England an undoubted advantage in dealing with Gen. Crispo and his government. England will demand satisfaction for this and other unwarranted outrages on her shipping.

It has been generally conceded in the West Indies that Venezuela was endeavoring to force the hands of Great Britain on the boundary question, but it is to-day quite as generally admitted that the murder of Mr. Garcia under the circumstances it took place, is the greatest blunder that has yet been perpetrated by Venezuela in her quarrel with England.

The government of Trinidad has been making inquiries into another alleged outrage by Venezuelan officers upon British subjects, and I am in a position to state that the act of the governor of Trinidad has forwarded to the colonial office a report, together with sworn affidavits from the parties directly interested, as to three Trinidad fishermen having been captured while making their way to their fishing grounds in British waters off the coast of Trinidad.

The fishermen were taken to Carupano and committed to jail. After being imprisoned fifteen days they were released. They then asked about their boat and were informed they could not get it and they had better leave Venezuela as quick as possible. The men had been nearly starved while in prison.

Steel Works Close Down.

BRADDOCK, Pa., Nov. 2.—An order for billets was completed in the Edgar Thompson steel works between 2 and 3 o'clock Friday morning and the plant was at once closed down, throwing from 1,500 to 2,000 men out of employment. The reports as to the cause of the suspension are conflicting, but an official of the company is authority for the statement that the close-down is caused by making repairs in the machinery and that they will resume operations Monday morning.

Hot Bricks Did It.

LOGANSPORT, Ind., Nov. 2.—The Dazell sisters, Sadie and Lou, school teachers in Harrison township, this county, created a sensation at Metea by driving into that town with their clothing on fire. The fire is supposed to have originated from hot bricks placed in the bottom of the buggy to keep their feet warm. Citizens rushed out with pails of water and extinguished the flames before either of the ladies was seriously burned.

THE SUNDAY SCHOOL.

International Lesson for Nov. 10, 1895.—Saul Chosen King—1 Sam. 10:17-27. Specially Arranged from Foliolet's Notes. GOLDEN TEXT.—The Lord reigneth: let the earth rejoice.—Ps. 97:1.

The lesson includes chapters 9 to 12, the whole story of the beginning of the new era of government, and the beginning of Saul's reign.

TIME.—100 or 105, twenty years after the battle of Ebenezer in our last lesson. We must remember that the chronology is uncertain, and the judgment of Samuel and the early part of Saul's reign may have overlapped.

PLACE.—(1) The great assembly described in the last lesson was at Mizpeh, a hill near Ramah. (2) Samuel's home was at Ramah, four or five miles north-west of Jerusalem. (3) The place where Saul met Samuel first was in the district of Zuph, not far from the tomb of Rachel, which is a mile north of Bethlehem.

EXPLANATORY.

THE ISRAELITES DESIRE A KING.—Chapter 8:1-5. We are now on the verge of a new era of government, a new development of the chosen people. When Samuel was about seventy years old, the leaders of Israel, who formed "the popular assembly which seems in all times to have existed in Israel" (Elliott), came to Samuel and asked that he would change the government to a kingdom, and aid them in finding a king.

REASONS FOR DESIRING A KING.—Samuel was growing old, and could not well lead their armies against the well-organized enemies around them. There was also a cloud gathering beyond Jordan, which threatened to sweep the Hebrews from the land their fathers conquered. All saw it coming. That cloud was a horde of eastern plunderers, led by Nahash, king of Ammon (11:1-3; 12:15). Another cloud in the southwest was the formidable league of the Philistine chieftains (6:16). Therefore they wanted a military leader, one "to go out before them and fight their battles" (8:19; 12:15).

It is quite probable that they half-consciously wanted a king because they were tired of having their prosperity depend on their good behavior. The leaders God chose for them could succeed only when the people turned to God. But a king might conquer by his skill and organizing power, and they imagined that they need not be so particular as to their duties toward God.

SAMUEL AND THE NEW ERA.—8: 6-23: This proposal was a great trial to Samuel, and sent him to God in earnest prayer to know what he should do. This request seemed charged with ingratitude towards their aged leader, who had spent a whole lifetime in unselfish devotion to their interests.

It is hard to be laid aside, to lay down the precious work still unfinished and cleft another neglect what has been done, and take up a different and inferior mode of procedure. Their request was a rejection of God as their king. He had given them victory after victory, always victory and prosperity when they had obeyed Him so that He could bestow these blessings, and now they could not trust him.

Hence it was a disappointment to Samuel that the people refused the splendid possibilities before them, which he had labored all his life to realize. And they chose only the second best.

Vs. 17. "Samuel called the people to Mizpeh" the hill near Ramah, his home, where the great assemblies were often held.

18. "By your tribes, and thousands," as the people were organized.

19. The choice was first made by lot, so that it would be shown to the people that the king was selected by God, and therefore they could safely accept him.

21. "When they sought him, he could not be found." Knowing that he had been Divinely chosen, and therefore that his name would be drawn in the lot, his bashful modesty led him to keep out of sight. He could not know that he would be received by the people, nor just what to do if he were accepted.

22. "They inquired of the Lord." Probably through the high priest. "Hid himself among the stuff." The baggage.

23. "He was higher than any of the people." This fact impressed the people, who looked at the outward appearance, for they could not see his heart and character.

24. "God save the king!" These acclamations were the people's acceptance of the Divine selection.

25. "Samuel told the people the manner of the kingdom." He laid down the principles, and limitations of the kingly power.

26. "And Saul also went home to Gibeah." In Benjamin, four miles north of Jerusalem, and about two miles from Ramah. He had much quiet work to do in preparing himself for his work, and there was no immediate occasion for his taking any public part in affairs. "With him a band of men (a. v., "the host," or "men of valor,") whose hearts God had touched." That they should accept him as king, and be willing to aid him. The highest prudence and sagacity marked all the early period of the reign of the first king.

27. "But," There was opposition at first from certain sons of Belial. That is, "sons of worthlessness," lawless, worthless, wicked persons.

"But he held his peace." He patiently bided his time till he could prove himself worthy to be king.

PRACTICAL SUGGESTIONS.

We often earnestly desire things which are not best for us. We are too ignorant of the issues to insist on any worldly good.

We often refuse God's best gifts, and then He can only give us the second best.

It is hard to grow old gracefully; to see what is assuredly the best, and in which we have put our whole lives, fading away, and a lesser and different good prevailing by other hands.

God sometimes yields to our requests, because He sees that we are not fitted for the higher blessings which He wishes to bestow upon us.

Outward advantages of beauty, family connections, wealth, personal attractions are the pedestal on which a man stands; but the pedestal is not a part of the man. The man alone should be measured in a true estimate of his value.

DIAMOND ROBBERY.

A Package Supposed to Contain $2,000 Worth—Trying to Trap the Crooks.

CINCINNATI, Nov. 4.—Messrs. Peck and Fox, the Fourth street diamond brokers, whose office was visited by a stranger who Mr. Peck states robbed him of $2,000 worth of loose diamonds, were callers at Col. Deitch's office Saturday. They said they spent the evening before at the different hotels trying to find where the robber stopped. Peck informed the superintendent that the thief was accompanied by another man. At the Emory hotel the clerk told himself and Mr. Fox that two men answering the description of the robber and his companion had stopped at that house and had departed suddenly Friday afternoon. The description of the men corresponded with that of the men who got the diamonds.

Detective Schnucks and Bulmer learned that a man answering the description of the robber had mailed a package in the post office. It was carefully tied and sealed and directed to New York. It is thought that possibly this package contained the diamonds. On this slight clue the police are trying to catch the robber. Eight stones with a valuation of from $100 to $250 apiece and a lot of smaller stones were taken.

THE GATTON MURDER.

Whistling Caused the Tragedy—The Uncle Accused the Nephew of Mocking Him.

COLUMBUS, O., Nov. 4.—Coroner Herbst has elicited some peculiar facts regarding the death of Lafayette B. Gatton, at Galloway, this county. His nephew, Chas. Gatton, who is charged with murdering the old man, says he was at the barn working with his uncle, and they had started in opposite directions to their homes, when both began to whistle at the same time. The elder Gatton accused his nephew of mocking him. This Charles denied, and his uncle called him a liar. Then Charles picked up a brickbat and threw it at his uncle, striking him on the head. His skull was crushed, and after lingering between life and death for seven weeks he died. The only statement the deceased ever made of the tragedy was, "The kid hit me." Charles Gatton is only 18 years old. He is not under arrest.

THE ELECTION.

State Committee Not Agreed as to the Basis for Comparing the Returns Tuesday.

COLUMBUS, O., Nov. 2.—The state committee have not been able to agree as to the basis for comparing the election returns next Tuesday night. Chairman Anderson, of the democratic committee, insists upon making the comparisons with the vote for secretary of state last year, for the reason that in several of the larger cities the precincts have been changed since 1893. Chairman Kurtz, of the republican committee, will make comparisons with the vote for governor in 1893, when McKinley's plurality was 80,000. The republican plurality last year was 137,000. The Western Union Telegraph Co., in collecting the returns, will compare the vote with that of 1893.

OHIO SHIP CANAL.

Capt. Chittenden, of the United States Engineering Corps, Has Completed the Survey.

COLUMBUS, O., Nov. 4.—The survey for the proposed Ohio ship canal has been completed, and the report is being rapidly formulated to present to the authorities at Washington. Capt. H. M. Chittenden, of the United States Engineering Corps, in speaking of the matter, said: "I expect to have the report entirely completed by the first of the year, and will present it to congress as soon as possible. The three routes surveyed—from Cleveland to Marietta, Sandusky to Portsmouth, and from Cleveland to Cincinnati—are all first-class routes, and would prove an estimable benefit, but I am in favor of no particular course of way. I do not care which route is selected."

Shot and Killed His Wife.

COLUMBUS, O., Nov. 4.—Elmer E. Brannigan, a colored teamster, shot and killed his 17-year-old wife, Mary B. Brannigan, Sunday evening. They separated four months ago and she has since been living at the house of her father, John Caslin, 303 Jackson street. Brannigan went there and tried to persuade his wife to live with him again. She refused to talk with him and started to leave the house for church when he drew a revolver and fired. She fell in the doorway and died in a few moments, the bullet passing through her head. Brannigan fled and is still at large.
